Foreword

Mandate

To satisfy the customer's needs for quality of goods and services through standardization and Quality Control.

OBJECTIVES

Harmonious development of activities of standardisation, marking and quality certification of goods made in India. Thrust to standardisation and quality control for growth and development of industry and meeting consumer needs.

1946 to 1970: The Genesis & Foot Steps of ISI

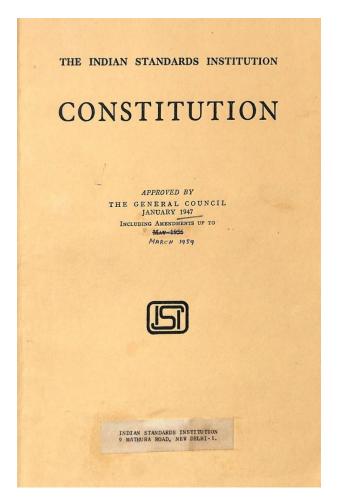

Relics of Early standardization in the history of India

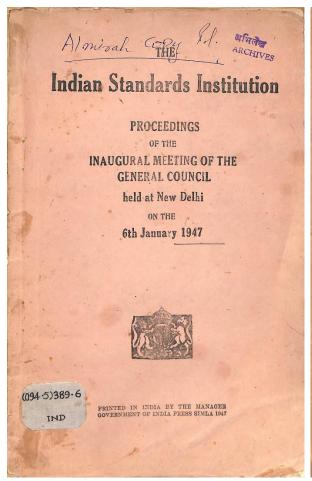

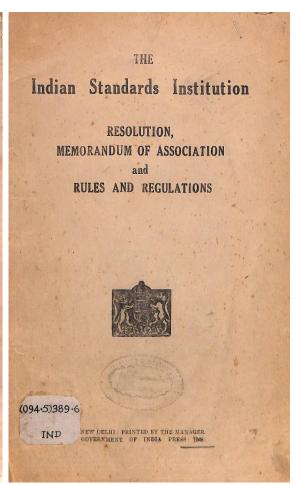

The concept of standardization has deep roots in India. The unearthed artefacts excavated from the site of Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa dating to the Indus Valley civilization bear facts to this. The later rulers of India gave much emphasis of usage of standard dimensions and precisions.

Early in the 20th century, the importance of standardization was well understood as a means of organizing industry to manufacture materials that adhered to benchmarks of specifications and quality control. The Railways was the first organization to recognize the need for developing new standard designs and specifications. In December 1940, a proposal was first mooted for the establishment of a standards institution for India, as it was felt that adoption of British and other standards were not always suitable for the country. This led to the Department of Industries and Supplies issuing a Memorandum on 3rd September 1946, formally announcing the setting up of the Indian Standards Institution (ISI) with the objective inter-alia of promoting standardization, and quality control. ISI came into being on 6th January 1947.

The tryst with standardization started on 6th January 1947 with ISI being registered as a society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860. The inaugural meeting of the General Council was held at New Delhi on the same day whereby the ISI Constitution was approved.

The standards formulation activity started with much enthusiasm and gusto

ADOPTION OF INDIAN STANDARDS

The Ministry of Railways (Railway Board), it is understood, has issued a circular to all Class 1 Railways advising them to adopt the following Indian Standard Specifications for Refractories for purposes of indent and purchase of their requirements in respect of this store:

15:6-1949 Indian Standard Specification for Moderate Heat Duty Fireclay Refractories, Group 'A'

IS: 7-1949 INDIAN STANDARD SPE-CIFICATION FOR MODERATE HEAT DUTY FIRECLAY REFRACTORIES, GROUP 'B'

IS: 8-1949 Indian Standard Specification for High Heat Duty Fireclay Refractories.

Indian Standards

IS: 2-1949 RULES FOR ROUNDING OFF NUMERICAL VALUES As 8 The specification enunciates the problem that arises in rounding off of numbers which have to be expressed correct to several decimal places and provides an agreed method to be followed by the industry in various mathematical problems which call for standard rules on the subject. IS: 3-1949 INCH-MILLIMETER CONVERSION FOR INDUSTRIAL USE The standard contains, in addition to the accepted ratio of conversion of inch to millimeters, conversion tables of inches to millimeters, millimeters to inches and binary fractions of an inch to millimeters. Explanatory notes are also appended to facilitate the use of the tables. As 8 IS: 4-1949 MAKE-UP OF PERIODICALS The standard provides an agreed set of rules for the layout of periodicals. The purpose of these rules is to enable editors and publishers so to shape the form of their periodicals as to facilitate their use by readers and librarians. The standard covers the requirements of individual issues, annual compilations and cumulative indices, and guiding rules to deal with abnormalities in the make-up of periodicals. IS: 5-1949 COLOURS FOR READY-MIXED PAINTS The standard corresponds to the 1948 edition of the B.S. 381C issued in March 1948 by the British Standards Institution. This comprises a schedule of 93 colours identified by a number and illustrated in colour on glossy surface. Colour quality is defined and a formula given together with colorimetric values of each colour. IS: 6-1949 MODERATE HEAT DUTY FIRECLAY REFRACTORIES, GROUP 'A' Rs 2 IS: 7-1949 MODERATE HEAT DUTY FIRECLAY REFRACTORIES, GROUP 'B' Re 1 IS: 8-1949 HIGH HEAT DUTY FIRECLAY REFRACTORIES Rs 2 These are standard specifications for different types of refractories produced in India, and cover the methods for chemical analysis, the determination of pyrometric cone equivalent under load for full-size bricks as well as for sections of bricks, the determination of porosity and resistance to spalling. IS: 9-1949 TEST FOR DETERMINING SHRINKAGE IN WOVEN COTTON AND LINEN CLOTH ON WASHING The standard describes the test for estimating shrinkage on laundering of woven cotton and linen cloth, in order that the manufacturers may be able to make due allow-ances in every type of fabric produced by them. The standard gives the description of the washing machine, the test sample and the procedure for the estimation of shrinkage after laundering. Rs 1/12 IS: 10-1949 PLYWOOD TEA-CHESTS The standard lays down the definitions used in the plywood industry and the trade requirements for plywood for tea-chests, standard sizes for tea-chest components, the tare and the tests for plywood and tea-chests.

QUALITY CONTROL

Rs 3/8

Reprint of American War Standard ZI.3-1942 "The Control Chart Method of Controlling Quality During Production". It details the statistical procedure to be adopted during inspection of samples, the interpretation of data and application of results, leading to well co-ordinated and most economic utilization of raw materials and labour in industry, and significant improvement in the quality of finished products.

1986 To 1987 From ISI to BIS

With the passage of time certain structural constraints in the legislative framework hindered the organization's effectiveness. Of prime importance was the menace of misuse of ISI's Standard Mark. In the mid 1980's it was felt necessary to confer a statutory status to ISI's functioning which led to the enactment of the BIS Act, 1986. ISI was now renamed as the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS), to promote harmonious development of standardization, and quality certification of goods, with a clearly defined management structure. The new statutory status conferred on BIS provided the organization with the legal basis to effectively and efficiently work towards the acceptance and promotion of Indian Standards.

Publications

BIS boasts of a plethora of publications to its credit. A brief glimpse of this world

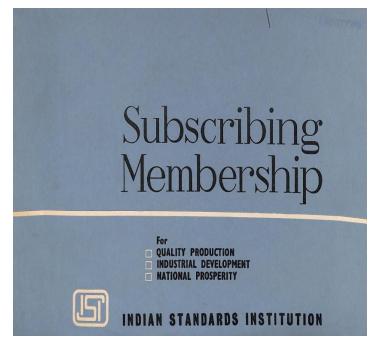

The ISI bulletin was re-christened as Standards India – The official journal of Bureau of Indian Standards since April 1987.

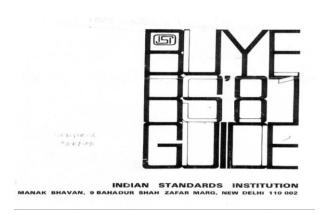

MANAK DUT-ISI'S NEW HINDI QUARTERLY JOURNAL

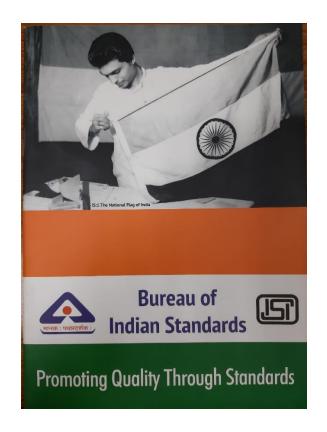

The inaugural issue of ISI's Hindi quarterly Journal, Manak Dut, was released by Shri Brij Mohan Mohanty, Union Deputy Minister for Civil Supplies, in New Delhi on 23 October 1980. Designed to promote standards-consciousness among the Hindi knowing public, the journal carries articles and features on standardization and quality control besides focusing attention on consumer problems and the need for wider implementation of the ISI Certification Marks Scheme. It also provides a glimpse of ISI activities including proposed and published standards in Indian languages and special projects undertaken by ISI from time to time. Suggestions from consumers and manufacturers also find a place in the new journal.

A highlight of the inaugural function of the Tenth Indian Standards Convention was the award of ISI Fellowships to 179 scientists and engineers in their capacity as past Chairmen of Sectional Committees, Councils and Technical Advisory Committees to ISI. Thirty of the Fellowships including eight posthumous awards were given away by Shri Bhagwan Sahay, Governor of Kerala, personally to the recipients and their representatives.

Instituted recently by the Executive Committee of the Indian Standards Institution, the award signifies recognition of valuable service to the development and promotion of standardization in different spheres of industry. By fostering a spirit of goodwill and give-and-take that characterizes the deliberations of numerous technical committees of ISI, these men of distinction have been responsible for bringing about a skillful synthesis of diverse interests and viewpoints and which are written into some 3 700 standards.

ISI fellowships were instituted in the year 1966

THE FUTURE BECKONS

The last seven decades of BIS's journey has shown how a small vision to establish an institution for formulation of standards can result in gigantic organization leading to industrial growth. BIS has sowed the seeds of scientific endeavor, standardization and conformity assessment which strives to foster, consumer movement in the country.

Acknowledgement

Through this Coffee Table Book an attempt has been made to capture the glorious and eventful journey of ISI to BIS and further. This effort has been possible because of the contributions from BIS library collections of Old Photographs, Annual Reports, ISI Bulletins & Standards India as well as BIS colleagues, both present and retired and Miss Priya Bhardwaj DEO who has enthusiastically worked in this project with me.

Sincere efforts have been made to ensure that each major event is captured in this book. There could be some omissions which were not intentional.
